Biotin

Biotin (vitamin B7) stimulates keratin production in hair.
Thinning of the hair is one of symptoms occurs as a result of Biotin deficiency.

L-Arginine

One of the most important amino acids helps the body build protein.
It strengthens the hair, decrease hair breakage and minimizes hair loss.
It helps in hair protection from the damaging effects of bleach.

Rosemary Extract

It stimulates cell division and dilates blood vessels.
Thus, stimulate new hair growth and can be used to treat androgenetic alopecia.
Has an Anti-bacterial and Anti-fungal properties.

Jojoba oil

Delay grays apperance.
Copper deficiency can lead to loss of pigment and premature gray hair, and copper itself is currently being studied as a potential topical anti-aging compound.
Jojoba oil contains copper, along with protective antioxidant like vitamin E, helping slow down this process and restore some of the lost copper.
The zinc that's found in jojoba oil, is vital for the tissue in the hair to grow. It helps the follicles grow and maintains the functionality of the surrounding oil glands.

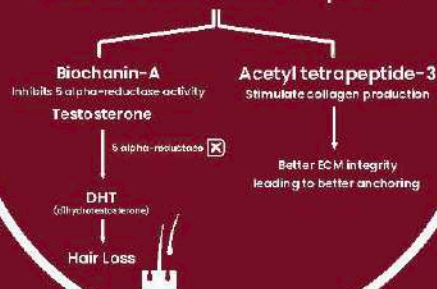

Tea tree oil

Has anti-fungal anti bacterial properties that protect your scalp from microorganisms buildup.
Tea tree oil can help regulate the scalp's oil production, resulting in a healthier scalp and better-looking hair.
